

Editor, The Ecologist website

Job description

The Editor's duties include:

- Commissioning articles, writing, editing (including headlines, captions and other page furniture) uploading and managing content for the website.
- Managing the work of our Contributing Editor and any other journalists commissioned by The Ecologist.
- Contributing to social media output, alongside the marketing staff of The Resurgence Trust, and producing a monthly newsletter for subscribers.
- Managing the website's administration, including having responsibility for the editorial budget and liaison with our advertising sales company where necessary.
- Liaising with appropriate partner organisations.
- Representing The Ecologist and The Resurgence Trust.

Reporting to the Editor-in-Chief of The Resurgence Trust, the Editor of The Ecologist will ensure the website maintains its authority and reputation within the environmental community, as well as the highest journalistic standards for accuracy and reliability. The Editor is also expected to help develop the site's commercial strength as an important part of The Resurgence Trust, identifying and developing income streams.

The Resurgence Trust is an educational charity, which seeks to promote awareness of environmental, social justice, arts, spirituality and related issues, through its magazine, Resurgence & Ecologist, its websites, events and other activities. As such, The Ecologist website seeks to maintain the values and principles of The Trust.

Salary, hours etc

£25,000 per annum for a five-day working week. Some weekend working may be required. Six weeks' holidays. Staff pension scheme.

The Resurgence Trust is based in Hartland, north Devon. The Editor of The Ecologist is expected to work from The Trust's offices, though some home working may be agreed.